

Privacy Notice – Integrated Care Board (ICB)

The Integrated Care Boards (ICB) are organisations established in English law by the Health and Social Care Act. They are clinically-led statutory NHS bodies responsible for the planning and commissioning of health care services for their local area. There are now 42 ICBs in England.

Integrated Care Boards are involved with deciding what services are needed for diverse local populations, and ensuring that they are provided. As such, anonymized clinical information will be sent to the ICB to enable them to plan and manage services within the Kent and Medway area.

We would only share identifiable information with the ICB where another legal basis for sharing is met, such as consent.

For more information on the role of the ICB see: NHS England » Integrated care boards in England

We are required by Articles in the General Data Protection Regulations to provide you with the information in the following 9 subsections.
